CEDAR POINT SHOALS.—The Port Tobacco Times in noticing the running ashore of the steamer Louise at Upper Cedar Point says:

"A rather singular condition of things exists at this point on the Potomac, and is the subject of much complaint, so we are informed, by those who navigate the river. The channel here runs well over to the Virginia shore passing close to Mathias' Point, whilst on the Maryland side the flats, known as the Port Tobacco or Ceder Point shoals, extend over nearly three fourths of the river and close to the channel. Those shoals are very shoal indeed, having but little over five feet of water on them and in please not more than the feet of water on them and in stand. 76 King street, without reserve. All places not more than two feet, and rising very suddenly. Formerly the Government had a who would avail themselves of great bargains tight boat anchored on these shoals, and after will do well to call early, as the entire stock will the war erected a light house at or near the have to be closed out in two weeks and the and borne down the stream some distance, house was crocted at Mathias' Point and the eld store closed. one not used, we believe, except during a fog, when the bell is tolled semi-occasionally. Withont knowing anything about it, one would nat-urally suppose that at the shoals is the point of danger; there was the place for the beacen to give warning of danger. Instead of that the light is now on deep water and the navigators are left to find out for themselves where the shoals are. We have often known vessels getting on the shoals in bad weather, but nobody ever heard of one going ashore on the Virginia side; the shore line on the darkest night would

FOR THE SUFFERERS, -Although the peoshe of Alexandria have already given liberally en aid of the yellow fever sufferers, yet they have not relaxed their efforts, and the good work still goes bravely on.

The Lee Socials, a club of young gentlemen of this city, wishing to do their part of the work, have gotten up an excursion to Geisboro' suction, on SATURDAY, September 21, 1878, for Tuesday night. The excursions heretofers at 9 o'clock a. m., at No. 32 North Royal st., given by this club are a sufficient guarantee the stock and fixtures of a bar-room and some that everything will be properly conducted, and the good object in view should secure a large attendance.

The officers of the steamer John W. Thempson also give an excurson for the same object, Tuesday night, to Marshall Hall. The entire profits of the hoat, including the bar room reccipts, will be turned over to the fund. The policemen have the tickets in charge, and will furnish them to all who wish to aid the cause.

As will be seen by a notice in another colnom, from Gen. M. D. Corse, there will be a meeting of ex Confederate soldiers and these sympathizing with them, at Sarepta Hall, on Monday night, to devise means to answer the appeal for help from the Louisiana Pivision of the Society of the A. N. V. A large atten dance is confidently expected.

Mayor Kemper to-day sent off another contribution of $150 to the stricken towns.

WASHED AWAY, - During the storm of night before last two spans of the bridge across Staunton river, on the Virginia Midland road, were washed away by the flood. The passen ger trains were unable to pass through, and that which left here yesterday morning, went only to Lynchburg, and returned about midnight. The Manassas train came in alone at the regular hour, and the night train was abandoned. It is not known how long a time will be required to repair the damages, but passengers will be transferred neross the break this evening. The trestling across the canal at Lynchburg was also slightly moved, but trains passed over as usual.

On the A. M. & O. road, beyond Lynchburg, four bridges were washed out, and trains cannot pass for ten days. The regular night train will be resumed tonight, but will run only to Gordonsville, to connect with the C. & O. train.

Sona. - These delicious birds are now found in large numbers in the marshes around this city, and are being brought to market by the hunters, who hawk them about the streets at forty cents per dozen. Mr. Benjamin Greenwood, the keeper of the lighthouse on Jones' Point, while hunting in the marsh opposite the city, yesterday, killed one hundred and twenty birds, only missing one shot. He also killed eight sora at four shots, the birds crossing one another. Reed birds are scarce, but the sera are more plentiful than for many

No trains have passen Steubenville, Ohio, on the Pan Handle Railroad, Pittsburg, Wheeling and Kentucky or Cleveland and Pittsburg Roads, and it cannot be stated how soon traffic will be resumed. The Ohio river at Stenbenville rose 16 feet in less than 24 hours. Eight inches of rain fell in the same time. The damage by floads in the surrounding country connot be estimated. The following is a list of persons killed and injured in the wrecks on the Eric and Pittsburg Reilroad : Adam Schlendwin, of Eric, engineer, leg and arm broken; John Banes, of Erie, fireman, killed; S. McCable, of Erie, engineer, fatally injured, internally; Isaac Gonsheimer, brakeman, killed; U. B. McDonald, brakeman, killed. From Youngstown, O., it is stated seven inches of rain fell in 24 hours. At three o'clock yesterday morning the residents on the streets in the vicinity of the Mahoning river were being removed from their dwellings in boats. On Mahoning avenue the water was eight feet deep. Several small dwellings were swept away like drift wood. The county commissioners state that the less to the county in ruined bridges will almost reach $100,000. The following properties were sl most totally destroyed :- Brown, Bonnell & Co., rolling mill; Morse Bridge Works, Dingleby & Co., lumbermen; Himrod Furnace Company, Andrews' Furnace. No trains arrived or departed from that place yesterday. At Mechanicsville near Painesville, Ohio, the dam gave way and a number of houses were inundated. The loss in that vicinity is estimated at $50,000. At Salem, O., a bridge fell with the engine and two cars which were upon it. The engineer and brakeman were severely injured. Near Alliance, Ohio, Richard Teeters, engineer of a coal train, had both legs broken, and the fireman was severely injured, by tunning into the chasm left by the bridge, which was swept away.
